

SOOTHSAYER. A fortune teller that is in two scenes.

SOOTHSAYER.

Caesar's.

Therefore, O Antony, stay not by his side.

Thy dæmon—that thy spirit which keeps thee—is

Noble, courageous, high, unmatchable,

Where Caesar's is not. Therefore

Make space enough between you.

ANTONY.

Speak this no more.

SOOTHSAYER.

To none but thee; no more but when to thee.

I say again, thy spirit

Is all afraid to govern thee near him;

But, he away, 'tis noble.